

Graduate Programs in Education

Doctoral Degree Program Offerings

The Werklund School of Education’s Graduate Programs are a destination of choice for highly qualified graduate students. Our programs are led by academic experts committed to developing new ideas and insights that address local, national, and international challenges, while also nurturing new generations of visionary thinkers. Our future-focused program delivery encourages a diversity of learners to draw on their strengths and creativity in building a better tomorrow. Start something with us today.

Doctoral Programs

Doctor of Education

This blended (face-to-face and online delivery) program is designed to accommodate working professionals and students who reside in or outside Calgary. Students have up to six years to complete all degree requirements. The first three years of the program include course work.

PhD in Educational Research

The PhD program in Educational Research allows students to explore and develop expertise in a specialization. Our program is full-time with a residency (on campus) component. Students study the following specialization areas: Adult Learning, Curriculum & Learning, Language & Literacy, Leadership, or Learning Sciences.

PhD in Counselling Psychology

Counselling Psychology is a thesis-based, on campus degree that prepares individuals to develop philosophical, theoretical, and research expertise in counselling psychology required of those who wish to offer effective psychological education and counselling and to work as counselling psychologists in a variety of public and private practice settings.

PhD in School & Applied Child Psychology

This is a thesis-based, on campus degree that prepares school psychologists to be contributors and effective collaborators in enhancing learning and mental health outcomes for all individuals within a wide variety of settings.

Which program is right for me?

Explore doctoral degree programs

werklund.ucalgary.ca/graduate-programs