

Graduate Programs in Education

Master's Degrees in Educational Research

The Werklund School of Education's Graduate Programs are a destination of choice for highly qualified graduate students. Our programs are led by academic experts committed to developing new ideas and insights that address local, national, and international challenges, while also nurturing new generations of visionary thinkers.

Werklund's graduate degrees are designed to fit the busy lifestyle of professionals, allowing them to continue working while developing new skills and participating in meaningful field-specific research. Our future-focused program delivery encourages a diversity of learners to draw on their strengths and creativity in building a better tomorrow. Start something with us today.

Master's Programs

Master of Arts

Applications open Sept. 1

This research-intensive, thesis-based degree prepares students to conduct research with a high degree of competence and integrity. This full-time program is available on-campus only. Specialization areas are: Adult Learning, Curriculum & Learning, Language & Literacy, Leadership, and Learning Sciences.

Master of Education: Specialist

Applications open Nov. 1

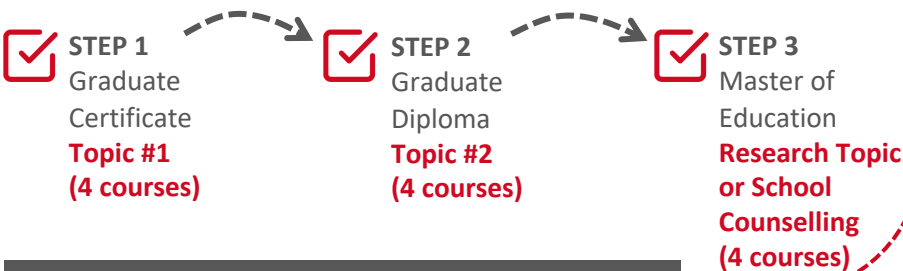

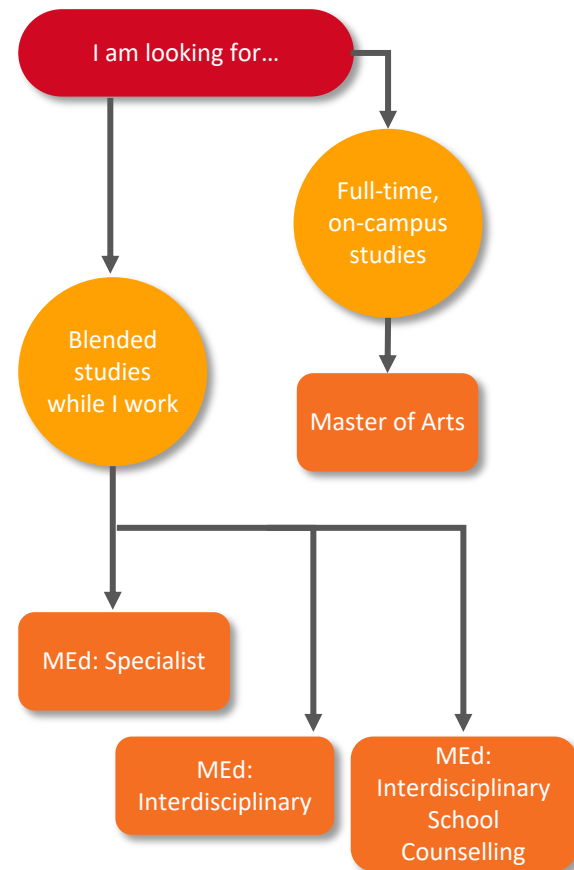

This is a course-based degree program that provides students with a systematic understanding of knowledge, and a critical awareness of current problems and new insights. The program has been designed to ensure that the courses and sequence provides a demanding, high-level academic experience that educates students as leaders of professional practice in the field of educational research.

Master of Education: Interdisciplinary

Applications open Nov. 1

This course-based pathway provides students with the opportunity to choose from a diverse range of topics culminating in a Master of Education. Using an innovative and individualized approach, students gain a depth of knowledge within chosen areas where they develop a critical awareness of current problems and insights informed by transformative research. This pathway also includes an option to specialize in School Counselling.

Which program is right for me?

Explore our master's programs

werklund.ucalgary.ca/graduate-programs

